Jaworski Subpoena For Nixon

Seeks Testimony In Trial of Aides

By Robert Siner

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 (UPI).—Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski today subpoenaed former President Nixon to appear as a prosecution witness in the Watergate cover-up trial of six of his former top administration and re-election campaign officials.

The former president previously had been summoned to appear as a defense witness at the trial, scheduled to begin Oct. 1, by his former domestic affairs aide, John Ehrlichman.

However, whether Mr. Nixon takes the stand at all is at this time problematic, in light of reports that he would enter a hospital for treatment of phlebitis in his left leg.

Yesterday, the U.S. ambassador to Great Britain, Walter Annenberg, told newsmen that the former president told him he would enter a hospital for treatment of the blood clot in his leg.

In addition, there have been newspaper reports that preparations for Mr. Nixon's arrival have been made at a naval hospital near the former president's San Clemente, Calif., estate.

No Conflict Seen

Numerous close associates and family members have said in recent weeks that Mr. Nixon is ill and mentally depressed. Two of his doctors have recommended hospitalization.

There was no official word on why the subpoena had been issued, but a spokesman said it would not conflict with the earlier summons by Ehrlichman. Sources said that the former president probably was being called to authenticate under oath some of the tapes used in the case.

The subpoena will be served by the FBI because of the bureau's liaison with the Secret Service, which is still guarding the former president. Usually subpoenas are delivered by the federal marshal for the area.

Both subpoenas command Mr. Nixon's presence at the opening of the trial Oct. 1, although he probably will not be called to the stand until later.

Commenting on the possibility that Mr. Nixon might not appear, a spokesman for Mr. Jaworski said, "He's been subpoenaed to testify. We expect him to testify."

While still president, Mr. Nixon refused to testify before either congressional committees, grand juries or court trials involving the Watergate scandal on the grounds that his position as chief executive made it impossible to appear.

However, as a private citizen, he would have to show that his testimony was unnecessary or that he was too ill, mentally or physically, to take the stand.

In addition, as a result of his position as president, Mr. Nixon could not refuse to testify on constitutional grounds but would have to answer fully, freely and truthfully all legitimate questions or face contempt or perjury charges.

It has been reported that the strategy of some of the defense attorneys will be to contend that they were acting under Mr. Nixon's orders and that he was the prime instigator of the cover-up.

If the former president's lawyers claim that Mr. Nixon's health does not permit him to take the stand, Judge John Sirica, the trial judge, could appoint a doctor to examine Mr. Nixon.

All Similarity to Brazil Ended on the Soccer Field

ROUEN, France, Sept. 19 (UPI).—When the president of Rouen received an offer to play an exhibition game against Pele's Santos club of Brazil, he was delighted.

"I received a telephone call from a man identifying himself as Roberto Gambassi of Bruges, Belgium, who said Santos was touring Europe and had a vacant date and could play Rouen," said Christian Monin today.

"He wanted 12,000 francs ($2,400) and we settled on 8,000 francs and a meal after the match."

Gambassi sent a photograph showing a team including several dark-complexioned players and the goalkeeper with the word "Brazil" on his jersey.

Santos for years has been one of South America's great soccer clubs, the nursery of Pele, often described as the world's greatest soccer player, and the team which developed the uncanny ball control and powerfully accurate kicking that took Brazil to four World Cup championships.

Last night, 1,004 spectators turned out in pouring rain for the occasion but quickly became puzzled. Said one spectator: "One of the players had his shorts pulled up to his armpits—he was perfectly ridiculous. They all had long white legs not at all like Brazilians. As for their football..."

U.S. Sets Inflow From Oil States Near $7 Billion

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 (Reuters).—The oil-producing nations invested about $7 billion in the United States and about $3 billion in Britain in the first eight months of 1974, the U.S. Treasury said in an estimate made public today.

In its report to the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, the Treasury also estimated that member nations of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) may have had a surplus "of somewhere between $3 billion and $3.8 billion" in the first eight months of this year. The report stressed, however, that the Treasury was not certain of its figures.

"We have pieced together information derived from many different sources," the report said. "What we have is fragmentary. Many of the reports cannot be confirmed. We can do no more than offer a very rough guess as to where funds may have been invested thus far in 1974," the Treasury said.

Of the estimated $7 billion invested in the United States, the Treasury said that roughly $4 billion went into various types of marketable U.S. government securities. Most of the remainder was placed with commercial banks and a few hundred million dollars was invested in corporate securities and real estate.

"At least $3 billion may have been invested in sterling, some of which no doubt involved purchases of British government securities and some sterling deposits in British banks," the Treasury said.

The report added that the Treasury "suspects" that $2 billion or more was invested in Europe through direct loans to official or quasi-official agencies as well as through direct purchases of private securities and real estate.

Many Commitments

It said the Treasury has received "a good many reports" of both tentative and firm commitments by the OPEC countries to developing nations and international lending institutions.

Altogether, the reported commitments would add up to more than $15 billion, the report said, but not all of that money will be distributed this year.

Although the Treasury noted it was not able to determine exactly how much money has been transferred so far under these commitments, it added that "we think it reasonable to conclude that as much as $3 billion was transferred during this period to developing countries and the multilateral banks including purchases of World Bank bonds amounting to about $500 million."

The Treasury said it assumed that most of the remaining $10 billion to $13 billion is currently being held in Eurodollars and other European currencies in banks outside the United States, largely in London.

The Treasury report estimated that the oil-producing nations would have receipts of about $80 billion this year, of which they would have to invest outside their own countries about $65 billion.

Some of the OPEC countries have reportedly placed a high value on anonymity in making their investments for fear that the host countries might freeze those assets "to induce modification of governmental policy," the report says.

TEST—Hundreds of high school students demonstrated outside the campus of Haile Selassie University in Addis Ababa Wednesday against the new regime. Another demonstration was dispersed by police yesterday.

ADDIS ABABA, Sept. 19 (UPI).—Police today broke up the first demonstration in the capital since Emperor Selassie was deposed a week ago.

Police pushed back several hundred youths who tried to go to the front gates of the 17th Division headquarters. Several demonstrators were injured and others fled.

In the wake of the clash, jeeps of armed troops patrolled streets to prevent further demonstrations. Police made no official statement. But officers at the scene believed the youths were angry by the families of those deposed by Ethiopia's new military regime.

Indesirable Discharge

Amnesty Loophole Will Allow Deserters to Avoid Service

By Diane Henry

BOSTON, Sept. 19 (AP).—Deserters will be able to return to the states and receive unconditional discharges without service, according to a Pentagon spokesman yesterday. The spokesman said that a group of war resisters, who had been in the states since the Vietnam War, had been able to avoid military service by using a loophole in the law. The spokesman said that the Pentagon had decided to do this because it was a "desirable discharge."

Pentagon Decision

"The matter was discussed at great length at the Pentagon," the spokesman said. "The Pentagon decided to do it this way," he said.

Theodore Marra, special assistant to the President, said that he recognized the dependency on the integrity and intent of the people who will come back.

"There is no reason why this administration can't extend trust" to these men, he said.

The design of President Ford's conditional amnesty proclamation is for deserters to be given unconditional discharges until completion of 24 months of alternative public service. Then the "undesirable discharge" would be removed from their records and replaced with a new classification, a "desirable discharge."

However, there was no legal provision in the proclamation to force deserters to complete their alternative service. As soon as a deserter signs the papers agreeing to work in public service and receives his undesirable discharge, he is no longer subject to military law.

No Civilian Law

According to Justice Department and Defense Department officials, there is no civilian law that would require deserters to report for alternative service.

Draft evaders will not benefit from the legal loophole because they must complete their public service before indictment or charges against them are dismissed.

A lawyer for the American Civil Liberties Union's amnesty project pointed out that if deserters agreed to the conditional amnesty program and failed to meet their work obligation, such action would be reflected on the deserters' discharge papers.

The lawyer, David Addlestone, said many deserters might have difficulty finding jobs in the United States if their discharge papers indicate they have not completed their work obligation.

Deserters would not be able to return to this country, take their undesirable discharge and go back to Canada to work, according to a Canadian law. A spokesman for the Canadian Embassy explained that if a deserter makes a "reaffirmation of allegiance to the United States," which would be required when he reported back to the military, he would relinquish his right to live in Canada.

Mr. Addlestone said the "desirable discharge" was not particularly appealing to many deserters because "it has a taint of all over it." Thus many deserters would have little incentive to complete their work obligation.

Warning Is Urged On Diabetes Drug

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 (AP).—A panel of medical experts has recommended that oral anti-diabetic drugs be required to carry labels warning that their use is risky.

"The new labeling should be strong enough to warn all physicians that they are distinctly putting their patient at risk by using oral agents when diet or insulin will suffice," said Dr. Thomas Chalmers, president of the Mount Sinai Medical Center in New York.

Dr. Chalmers and four others testified as a Senate subcommittee opened three days of hearings yesterday on the safety of oral anti-diabetic drugs, which are used by about two million Americans.

the Soviet Union is also doing four powerful new missiles that are far more accurate than those already deployed, the institute said.

The survey covers the year up to 1975.

The survey showed a steady rise in the number of Soviet intercontinental and submarine-launched nuclear missiles, while the number of American missiles has remained stable since 1967. Both countries have added multiple warheads to their missiles during the years.

In July, the institute said, the United States had 1,110 intercontinental and 620 submarine-launched missiles, while the Soviet Union had 510 intercontinental and 2,295 with 48 ICBMs added this year.

"If and when" American building programs are completed, as forecast for 1975-1980, the United States will have 9,000 separately targetable warheads. The Soviet Union is expected to have roughly 7,000 warheads at the same time. This analysis does not include the capacity of bomber-delivered nuclear explosives.

Another future element in the strategic balance is the American B-1 bomber which is due to make its first flight next year. The rival Soviet Backfire bomber is due to enter service about the same time. At present, the Warsaw Pact

Kennedy Vows, if Candidate, to Air Chappaquiddick

HOBART, Ind., Sept. 19 (AP).—Sen. Edward Kennedy said yesterday that he will answer all questions concerning the Chappaquiddick incident if he becomes a candidate for president in 1976. The Massachusetts Democrat, who has said he will announce before the end of the year his decision on whether to seek the presidency, told a news conference he would "respond to questions and do the best I could" about the controversy surrounding the accident in July, 1969, in which Mary Jo Kopechne drowned when a car driven by Sen. Kennedy plunged off a bridge at Chappaquiddick Island.

"I have indicated it was a very deep personal tragedy. I have accepted full responsibility for it and full regret for the incident," Sen. Kennedy said. "I would respond to any of the questions."

Son and Friends Attack Leary For Agreeing to Be Informer

By Lacey Fosburgh

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19 (AP).—The son and two close friends of Timothy Leary held a news conference here yesterday to denounce Leary, who is serving a 30-year jail sentence on various drug charges, for agreeing to testify against his former colleagues to the federal authorities.

Speaking before about 200 members of the news media and the West Coast leftist community, 26-year-old Jack Leary, poet Allen Ginsberg and Richard Alpert, a former Harvard teacher who is now known as Baba Ram Dass, called their former hero a "cop informant," a "liar" and a "paranoid schizophrenic."

Returning to the scene of hallucinogenics and brotherhood that they had shared with the former Harvard psychologist and drug cultist in the 1960s, they derided Leary harshly for what they characterized as his betrayal in the 1970s.

To Testify Soon

Leary, 54, according to well placed sources, is scheduled to testify before a federal grand jury soon against his former revolutionary and drug associates in return for a speedy parole from prison.

His son, who said that he now hated and had contempt for his father, said: "His action comes as no surprise to me. I know Timothy lies at will when he thinks it will benefit him because for him lies are easier to control than the truth." He added:

"I would not be surprised if he testified about my sister or myself, if he could. Timothy, by his deceit, is betraying the very meaning of trust."

The speakers at the three-hour news conference also criticized the Justice Department, which they said was intent on arresting radical lawyers on the basis of Leary's testimony.

Marijuana Smuggling

On Sept. 5, the speakers said, one of Leary's former lawyers, George Chula of Los Angeles, was indicted on a charge of smuggling marijuana to him in prison. Leary's testimony, they asserted, was the key evidence against the lawyer. Leary also has made statements against other attorneys.

Another speaker was Jerry Rubin, the former hippie leader. "Tim's fantasies and descriptions always exceeded fact," he said. "I used to be amused by it but now it has taken on serious, dangerous proportions, affecting other people's lives."

"Leary played a positive role in raising the consciousness of people in this country," Rubin said, "and he was jailed and punished because of this influence. But in breaking him, the government is consciously trying to spread fear and cynicism and despair. He has joined the forces that he opposed with his speeches about love and peace in the 1960s. The specter of Tim testifying is scary."

NATO Admiral Cites Perils in Allied Disputes

ROME, Sept. 19.—The NATO commander for the Mediterranean area warned today that internal disputes between member countries, such as the current Cyprus crisis, can become "tragic, divisive, even destructive."

U.S. Adm. Means Johnston Jr., Commander in Chief Allied Forces, Southern Europe, said in a speech to the American Club of Rome: "Our emphasis has been on solidarity against external threats rather than the resolution of internal difficulties."

"The real tragedy of the current division is that we cannot present a fully united and effective front against Warsaw Pact military and political opposition without mutual understanding and cooperation."

In the wake of the Turkish military invasion of Cyprus, Greece has announced that it is withdrawing its troops from the NATO military command.

Adm. Johnston, who is based in Naples, said that a balance of military power must be maintained in the Mediterranean in the face of the continuing Soviet naval buildup there.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 19 (Reuters).—The two-day celebration of the anniversary of Mexico's independence left 22 persons dead, 615 injured and 539 under arrest, the police and Red Cross said. Most of the casualties on Sunday and Monday resulted from traffic accidents, fights and excessive drinking.

Fighting Erupts at School in Boston

BOSTON, Sept. 19 (AP).—Fighting broke out between black and white students at Hyde Park High School today, the sixth day of busing to integrate city schools. "We think there was extensive disruption," a mayor's office spokesman said. "The disturbance centered on the lunch room. There was food and tray throwing."

Additional policemen and an ambulance were dispatched to the school. The high school is in a white middle-class neighborhood on the southern edge of Boston. It is several miles from South Boston, where most of the disruption has occurred since busing began under a federal court order.

At Jamaica Plain High School, police investigated an apparent shooting. No injuries were reported, however. A police detective said that he left his post briefly inside the school near the entrance and when he returned discovered a bullet hole in the front door. Officers later recovered a 30-caliber bullet.

Neo-Nazis Ousted

A group of neo-Nazis was ushered out of the state today after it was involved in a confrontation in South Boston. Seven members of the National Socialist White People's party, based in Arlington, Va., rode about the city in a truck, the mayor's office said.

The men, dressed in uniforms decorated with swastikas, were ordered by police commissioner Robert Duggan to leave "for their own protection" after they got into an argument with a small group of white youths. They left the city under state police escort.

A spokesman for the party said that the neo-Nazis had gone to Boston in response to appeals from anti-busing forces.

Yesterday, the boycott of integrated public schools appeared to be losing strength as attendance continued to increase.

75% Attendance

School officials said that attendance was just over 75 percent—with 81,479, out of a projected enrollment of 81,732 students, showing up.

Officials said that attendance has been increasing by about 3 percent a day since school started.

At South Boston High School, 76 of the 1,031 white pupils assigned to the school went to classes yesterday. Tuesday, 60 attended. Of the 380 blacks assigned there, 143 went to school yesterday—36 more than Tuesday.

In the past, the school has been 99 percent white. It is a focal point of white opposition to integration.

Many South Boston whites are now assigned to Roxbury High School, which before had been 100 percent black. But few of them are boarding buses to go there.

Argentine Terrorists Kill 2

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 19 (AP).—Fifteen terrorists killed two men today and kidnapped two brothers who own one of Argentina's biggest grain firms, police said.

The deaths were the 11th and 12th in Buenos Aires in the last week. The terrorists put several cars into the path of a limousine carrying Juan and Jorge Born, directors of the Bunge and Born Co. They were accompanied by their manager and bodyguards and were going to their offices in Buenos Aires from La Lucila, a northern suburb.

Police said that the bodyguards opened fire to prevent the kidnapping. But the terrorists fired back, killing chauffeur Juan Carlos Perez and Alberto Bosch, the company's manager. The Born brothers were then dragged from their car and taken away.

President Isabel Peron, meanwhile, met with government, military, business and labor leaders yesterday and announced sweeping new labor benefits. Her announcement was made soon after a rightist Labor Ministry official was killed—a victim of the wave of terrorism.

After the meeting, Mrs. Peron said she would hold a rally for workers tomorrow in the Plaza de Mayo to announce measures giving them more vacations and other benefits.

Defends Soviet Program

Russian Says U.S. Critics Seek To Wreck Joint Space Effort

By Hedrick Smith

MOSCOW, Sept. 19 (NYT).—A Soviet newspaper charged yesterday that former U.S. Ambassador Foy Kohler and elements of the American press were trying "to discredit in advance" the joint Soviet-American space shot set for next July by pointing to difficulties in the Soviet space program.

The newspaper also took offense at suggestions that Moscow was taking part in the Apollo-Soyuz mission to learn the technological secrets of American spacecraft in order to try to catch up with the American space program.

An article printed by Literaturnaya Gazeta, a weekly, accused Mr. Kohler and others of trying to shift the cold war from earth to space by attempting "to throw a shadow on this phase of scientific cooperation, to blacken the forthcoming joint experiment, just because it is joint, because it promotes establishment of normal relations and arouses the interest and sympathy of ordinary Americans."

Docking Mechanism

The article, written by Grigory Khoshin, a researcher at the official U.S.A. Institute, took specific offense at suggestions that the Soviet Soyuz spacecraft was having troubles with its docking mechanism.

Mr. Kohler, who was ambassador here from 1962 till 1966, and is now a professor at the University of Miami in Florida, referred to such difficulties in the foreword to a recent book, "U.S.-Soviet Cooperation in Space." Many other press articles have also raised similar questions.

A week ago in Houston, Maj. Gen. Vladimir Shatalov, chief of command training for the Soviet space program, acknowledged at a news conference that the latest Soviet manned mission, Soyuz-15, had encountered problems with its automatic docking mechanism.

Mr. Shatalov said that the automatic system for the Soyuz-15 approach the Salyut-3 orbital space station too fast in the last 100 feet to permit a safe "hard docking." But he emphasized, and American space officials agreed, that "as far as the joint [Apollo-Soyuz] flight is concerned, this has no direct bearing on it."

American officials explained that the Soyuz spacecraft in the joint flight will be in a passive position, waiting for the Apollo to catch up and dock with it. In other words, the Apollo must be the spacecraft with the effective docking system.

Turkish Leader Ends Party Talks

ANKARA, Sept. 19 (UPI).—President Fahri Koruturk today ended his talks with political party leaders. He is expected to ask Premier Bulent Ecevit to form a new government tomorrow, sources said today.

The Turkish parliament also returned from its summer recess for an emergency meeting to extend martial law in Turkey—introduced during the Cyprus invasion—for 15 days more.

Leaders of several political factions predicted that Mr. Ecevit, who resigned at the height of his popularity to seek a stronger mandate through elections, would be asked to form a new cabinet.

Debts May Halt Vietnam Truce Unit

By George McArthur

SAIGON, Sept. 19.—The international unit set up to supervise the South Vietnamese cease-fire faced almost total suspension of operations today because it could not pay about $4 million in debts.

It was a complicated financial-diplomatic situation. The United States—the only country that as been paying its contributions on time—let its discontent be known by permitting an American company to terminate its support contracts with the international organization.

The Los Angeles-based Pacific Architects and Engineers notified the International Commission for Control and Supervision today that it was ending all its support activities. That meant the end of radio communications, fuel, electric power, messing facilities and other services for virtually all the installations of the four-power commission.

A spokesman for the company said that it would probably take about two weeks to discontinue the services—an apparent hint that if money were forthcoming the action could be rescinded. The ICCS owes the company almost $2 million. It also owes the American-owned airline Air America $2 million.

Skeleton Operation
The effect of the company's pull-out would be to force each of the four ICCS member states—Poland, Hungary, Iran and Indonesia—to support its own delegations as it saw fit. Helicopters and communications for travel, however, would obviously be lacking and, in effect, the commission would be reduced to maintaining a skeleton organization in Saigon.

A spokesman for the company said that the decision to end the support contracts was made after coordination with the U.S. Embassy. An embassy spokesman said, "We are not talking about it at this time."

As of yesterday, the United States was the only country to have paid its contribution to the $23-million budget which technically went into effect April 1. The United States has paid $4 million. South Vietnam was understood to be preparing to forward its contribution of $4 million.

North Vietnam and the Provisional Revolutionary Government of the Viet Cong have contributed nothing. The four member states—expected to contribute token amounts—have paid nothing because, they say, their expenses already exceed the amounts of their specified contributions.

Even before the new budget was approved by the four powers, the ICCS was deeply in debt from its previous year's operations because the Communist members had failed to meet their obligations.

From its beginning, after the signing of the Paris agreements in January, 1973, the ICCS has been only marginally effective. It was able to supervise the exchange of war prisoners, but it has not done much more.

The Hungarian and Polish delegations have effectively blocked any overall investigation of cease-fire violations in the country-side. During the last year and a half, the ICCS teams, with Indonesian soldiers replacing the Canadians, who withdrew in disgust, have virtually all pulled back to Saigon.

POWs Exchanged in Laos
PHNOM PENH, Laos, Sept. 19 (Reuters).—The first prisoner of war exchange since the end of the Laotian civil war earlier this year was completed today at Phnom Penh, just east of the Pines des Jarrés.

The Vietnamese government handed over 173 North Vietnamese soldiers to its partners in the new coalition government, the pro-Communist Pathet Lao. Seven Pathet Lao soldiers were also handed over.

The Pathet Lao released 150 Thai mercenary troops and 20 Laotian soldiers. There will be a further exchange of prisoners in a week's time.

Quaintness Gets Out of Hand As Britons Compare Names

LONDON, Sept. 19 (UPI).—P.H. Moore could not believe his eyes when he read the title in a list of church appointments and wrote a letter to the Times demanding to know if there really was so quaintly named a parish as Piddletrenthide.

Y.S. Mr. Moore, there is a Piddletrenthide. Not only that but its vicar also serves Alton Barnes and Fries and is priest-in-charge of Snodhams Weston and Kingston Magna.

Mr. Moore's delight in the picturesque name was shared by other readers, who hastened to report the curious, droll and fanciful labels imposed by centuries of history, both lay and clerical, on many villages in Britain.

S.P. Edmunds wrote that Ham and Sandwith were on the same signpost in Kent. Ellen Lloyd reported that in her own area of Hertfordshire there were villages named Cold Christmas and Nasty.

Cricketer writer Findlay Rea offered Barton-in-the-Beans, Hinton-in-the-Hedges, Helions Bumpstead and the romantic little hamlet (presumably) of Haverling-Athe-Bower. They all field teams in the village cricket championships.

Politician Trevor Jones said the superiority of Dorset in unusual, not to say eccentric, place names cuts across party lines. He cited Toller Porcum, Sydling St. Nicholas, Whitchurch Canolourum and Ryme Intrinseca.

Novel Glorifying Stalin in War Draws Attack in Soviet Press

MOSCOW, Sept. 19 (NYT).—A new popular pulp novel that glorifies Stalin has come under attack for exaggerating the importance of the Soviet dictator's leadership in World War II and glorifying over his mistakes.

A review printed this week in a major daily newspaper suggested that there is continuing disagreement within the Soviet establishment over what image of Stalin's wartime leadership should be conveyed to the younger generation.

Last spring and summer, two installments of the novel "War," by Ivan Gladnyuk, a popular writer, appeared in the conservative youth monthly, Molodaya Gvardiya (Young Guard). The critique was published this week by Komsomolskaya Pravda, organ of the Young Communist League.

Liberals Disturbed
The "War" installments disturbed some liberal intellectuals because they contained the most ardently sympathetic literary portraits of Stalin to appear here in years. The novel presents him as an inclusive leader, ignores his part in the outbreak of the war and treats his personality cult sympathetically while disregarding his purges.

"Willful or other unlimited glorification of an individual role results in diminishing the role played by the people and the Party," was Komsomolskaya Pravda's comment.

French Radio-TV Gets New Chiefs Of Broadcasting

PARIS, Sept. 19 (Reuters).—Far-reaching reforms of the state-run French broadcasting system, ORTF, took final shape yesterday with the appointment of directors for the three television channels and the radio network.

The government named Jean Chastagne, 52, a research scientist, sociologist and author to head the first television channel; Marcel Jullian, 51, a prominent publisher, to run the second channel; and Claude Contamine, 45, a former diplomat and television executive, to run the third.

Mrs. Jacqueline Baudrier, 52, a broadcaster who has made a career at the ORTF, was named head of radio services.

The new broadcasting directors will work independently of each other, with the three television channels competing for audiences. The first and second will concentrate on general entertainment and information, the third on films and education.

The reform marks a break with the past, when the broadcasting system was a monolithic body run by a single director-general responsible to the president or the prime minister.

Munitions Stolen At Military Base In West Germany

GRAFENWOER, West Germany, Sept. 19 (UPI).—Ninety thousand rounds of small-caliber munitions have disappeared from a West German Army base, police said today.

Thieves sprung the lock of a munitions bunker in the Grafenwoer base in southwestern Germany and stole 30 boxes of bullets, police said.

The haul included 60,000 rounds of 22-caliber bullets which fit standard West German weapons, police said. The value of the munitions was estimated at 30,000 marks ($11,000), they said.

Three weeks ago, thieves stole 90 lightweight anti-tank missiles from an American Army base in Miesau, only a few miles from the West German Army base.

German police and U.S. Army investigators are still seeking the missiles, an Army spokesman said.

an associate professor at Gorky University, wrote that "in dealing with this 'weighty issue' of Stalin's role, 'the author should have taken into account clear-cut appraisals by our historical science and, of course, exhaustive analysis of the initial and subsequent periods of the war in a number of party documents. Unfortunately, the author of 'War' has paid considerable tribute to historical subjectivism."

An Euphemism

This is a Soviet euphemism for overestimating the role of an individual in relation to mass collective efforts or the forces of history.

But the article carefully stopped short of repeating any of the blunt criticisms of Stalin made in the early 1960s while the late Nikita Khrushchev was premier. At that time, Stalin was accused of having decimated the

Shattered Art Show Is 'Cheap Provocation' by

By Peter Osnos

MOSCOW, Sept. 19 (UPI).—The last night of a shattered art show in Moscow as a "cheap provocation" by Western news reports of police dispersal of the gathering as "Jude."

In an unusually harsh worded commentary, Tass said those who "masterminded" the exhibit were "simply out to create another anti-Soviet sensation. It is for this reason that they [the artists] informed diplomats and journalists who daily turned up at the site to make up for a lack of art fans among their countrymen for the publicity-seeking painters."

About 200 persons, including artists and other interested Russians, diplomats and reporters turned up for the show in a vacant lot on the edge of Moscow. The show was broken up by plainclothesmen posing as workers, who turned bulldozers, trucks and high-pressure water hoses on the crowd, snatched up about a dozen persons, including several women, and arrested five Russians.

Artists Freed
Two of the artists were freed without a trial, a time and a third, who was jailed, was released the same day. Two others were freed yesterday. Tuesday, two unidentified women returned to the site to one of the organizers. They said the works were "found."

The relatively lenient treatment of the arrested artists and the return of some of the paintings had prompted speculation that the Soviet authorities were embarrassed by the incident, which received front-page treatment in newspapers throughout the West. That was apparently wrong. The Tass statement to Konstantin Andriev on the Eng service, which means, not to be used in papers or broadcasts, first official acknowledgment of the incident and, if locally, it will readers that a serious violation occurred, surprising fact at so much is being denied.

The commentary in the Western report cited "spared us a long, lurid picture of the show, which was described as a 'clown' staged to waste

The Gold Standard

There are an estimated one million unemployed workers in South Vietnam, a population of 20 million. Inflation and a lowered standard of living have also increased unrest.

Meanwhile, in Saigon a 49-year-old man burned himself to death yesterday in what police said today was an anti-Communist protest.

Police said the victim set himself afire with gasoline and left behind a note condemning the Communists for "murdering compatriots."

He was the fifth man to burn himself to death in the Saigon area in the last two months in what the government says are anti-Communist protests.

In another development, reporters burned 10,000 copies of an opposition newspaper today rather than allow police to confiscate the edition.

MANILA, Sept. 18 (AP).—A leader of a Muslim guerrilla band on Basilan Island off southwestern Mindanao has surrendered to the military with 91 followers. They turned over four 30-caliber machine guns and 38 other firearms during the weekend, the Department of Defense said this week.

According to an official statement, Haji Abdul Rakman, who has been fighting for almost two years on the eastern end of Basilan Island, 500 miles south of Manila, turned over his band's firearms to Col. Tomas Nancuil Jr., commander of the 2d Brigade and military governor of the island.

Mr. Rakman was one of the last of the known rebel leaders to give up his arms. Two other rebels, who ended their fighting in January, have been named vice-governors of the island.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

Kuwait Boosts Share in St. Martins

Investments of Kuwait Ltd. have increased its shareholding in St. Martins Property Corp. The British company it hopes to take over, to 7,670,500 shares from 5,210,500 shares. The Kuwaiti government-controlled concern now has an 11.7% per cent interest in St. Martins, up from 8.07 per cent on Sept. 8, when it announced its bid for St. Martins. The share price for St. Martins has ranged between 125-135 pence for most of this month. Kuwait's cash offer of 140 pence a share values St. Martins at $107 million, assuming full conversion of the convertible stock.

Certain-Tied to Raise Loan

Certain-Tied Products Corp. has signed an agreement to obtain $85 million in long-term debt from three major insurance companies and an agreement in principle to obtain about $23 million in equity from the sale of securities to Saint-Gobain-Pont-A-Mousson of France. Under a 20-year loan agreement the company will borrow $85 million at an annual interest rate of 10 1/4 per cent from Prudential Insurance Co. of America, Equitable Life Assurance Society and Aetna Life Insurance Co. Certain-Tied intends to sell to Saint-Gobain 1 million shares of a new $20 series "C" convertible preferred stock and 400,000 shares of common, consisting of 305,164 shares of treasury common and 14,836 common authorized but not issued. The new capital will permit Certain-Tied to continue its capital expansion program that will enable it to meet the sharp increase in demand for its products, the company says.

Yashica and Zeiss to Make Camera

Yashica of Japan and the Carl Zeiss group of West Germany have completed technical and business arrangements to make and sell jointly-developed single-lens reflex cameras. Carl Zeiss will supply 20 types of lens and exchangeable lens, three of which will be produced in Japan, and Yashica will make bodies and components for the 35-mm camera. The cameras will be sold through Yashica's worldwide network under the revived trade name Vontax from around April next year. Initial production will be 5,000 a month and the camera will be priced at about $350.

Spain Building Yard for LNG Ships

Spain has started construction of the world's first shipyard specially designed for construction of Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG) and Liquefied Petroleum Gas (LPG) vessels. The yard, to be owned and operated by Sistemas Navales y Criogenicos (Ornavic) will be at Punta Mar, in southern Spain. It will cost about $40 million. The yard is to be completed by early 1977. Ornavic is backed by Sener, a Spanish engineering construction company, Banco de Vizcaya (Bancaya) and Banco Espanol de Credito (Banesco) and three Spanish-based international financial institutions: Union Industrial Banca (Bank-union), Liga Vascongada and Banco de Finanzacion Industrial (Induban).

But Year's Trend Called Downward

Profit Jumps 42 Per Cent at Burmah Oil

LONDON, Sept. 19 (AP-DJ)—Burmah Oil Co.'s net profit rose by 42.2 per cent in the half year ended June 30, the company reported today.

Earnings totaled $182 million, up from $128 million in the year earlier half. Turnover rose to $149 million from $130 million.

The company declared an interim dividend of 5.36 pence, up from 4.62 pence.

Burmah said it is unlikely in the present circumstances that its total profit for 1974 will reach the level achieved in 1973, when the company reported net income of $44.2 million.

The company said the continuing reduction in oil consumption must inevitably affect its second-half profits.

The net-profit figure for the first half did not include an extraordinary loss of $3.95 million on foreign exchange adjustments.

The net-profit figure for the year earlier period did not include an extraordinary profit of $5.97 million.

The question of when world commodity prices will recover from a four-month downturn is preoccupying traders, but no one is willing to answer the question.

Some food commodities like sugar remain relatively strong because of world shortages, while metals in particular have been gradually undermined by lack of industrial demand.

As forecast in the past few months, have been, and probably will be, further eroded by world recession pressures.

The possible timing of a recovery involves various elements, analysts say. They note, for example, that many materials are currently down in price from a year ago and certainly from the boom period of April-May.

When cash copper wirebars saw a record price of $1,380 a metric ton, currently cash bars are around $820.

Many commodity prices are still above April and year-earlier levels, but in some cases below the quotations of a month ago.

But taking a general view, the financial times commodity index (July 1, 1953, equals 100) at Sept. 17 was down 31.57 points, at 196.70, from April 5, and 7.14 points down from a month ago. Yet it remained above the year-ago figure of 187.97.

While the figures are not absolutely comparable because there is no adjustment for inflation, they are representative of prices for the periods concerned.

Arab Purchases
The oil squeeze early this year fueled the spring commodities boom through heavy Arab purchases of food materials, especially sugar, and apparent injection of Arab money into other commodity markets.

Cosider oil also increased cost operations were expected to begin early in November.

Burmah hopes to stabilize its returns from its tanker fleet with the help of the Bahamas terminal. Mr. Lumsden noted in outlining the year's prospects that there had been a marked fall in demand for tankers and that the spot market continued depressed.

In 1973, about a third of Burmah's turnover of $496 million resulted from its tanker operations. An official said Burmah had benefited from last year's high tanker rates but had suffered from this year's fall in rates.

Burmah, he said, wanted to avoid wide swings of the market by having tanker tonnage committed for the long term.

A Burmah official said at a press briefing later that the transshipment terminal is being completed ahead of the scheduled plan, 1, 1975. He said the terminal would be ready to operate in mid-October, but that actual operations were expected to begin early in November.

Loan-Rate Dip Boosts N.Y. Prices

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 (UPI)—Falling short-term interest rates and some hope for a lessening of inflation's rate of gain propelled prices sharply higher on the New York Stock Exchange today.

The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 32.14 points to 674.05. About 1,290 issues gained while only 280 declined.

Volume totaled 17 million shares compared with 11.76 million yesterday.

Analysts credited a strong early gain to continuing signs that the Federal Reserve has relaxed its tight credit policy and accompanying cuts in short-term interest rates.

They said the declining short-term rates encouraged hope that the bank prime rate would soon recede from its current 12 per cent level.

The early rally leveled in mid-session but revived on encouraging comments from Treasury Secretary William Simon. He said he expects a further decline in short-term rates and added that the inflation rate will fall below the double-digit level in the first quarter of next year.

Trane was one of the most active issues on the NYSE, closing at 19 1/2, off 3/8. Turnover included a block of 284,500 shares at 13.

Great Western United gained 1 7/8 to 11 1/2. The company plans to put out until Sept. 30 securities holders' meeting to consider a recapitalization plan that has lost support of a majority of directors.

The meetings are being delayed to allow more time for solicitation of proxies before the Oct. 1 termination of an agreement to sell Great Western United's sugar subsidiary.

The American Stock Exchange index closed up 2.03 to 66.00. The most active issue was Interway, closing at 8 3/4 up 1 3/8 on volume of 110,000 shares.

On the over-the-counter market, the NASDAQ industrial average rose 1.05 to 58.79.

Bonds extended yesterday's advance to moderately active trading, while bills showed further strength under the lead of the current three-month bill.

Government coupons continued to benefit from yesterday's purchases by the Federal Reserve, and gains in the medium and longer-term issues ranged to 6-33 points.

However, dealers said that there was little follow-through, after an early burst of strength, and prices were closing off their highest levels of the day.

Corporates, after moving fairly indecisively through most of the session, picked up momentum following the downward revision in the second-quarter gross national product and corporate profits announced by the Commerce Department late in the session.

Another background to sentiment in the corporate market was widespread expectation that the first downside move in the prime rate may occur around the end of the month, and outstanding issues in the secondary market ended with gains ranging as far as 5/8 point.

Bills continued to show strength under the lead of the three-month bill, which dropped 70 basis points in yield.

However, dealers said that this was entirely unrepresentative of the sector, and simply reflected the acute shortage of this particular issue which developed following Monday's auction.

More representative of the market, dealers said, was the performance of last week's three-month bill which only dipped five points in yield, the current six-month bill which held about steady, and the new 12-month bill, auctioned yesterday, which dipped 10 points in yield.

In other money market action federal funds traded quickly between 11.125 and 11.25 per cent through the day without any central bank open market action.

In Chicago, soybeans futures showed final gains of 11 to 15 cents a bushel, wheat finished near day's highs for gains of 5 to 10 cents a bushel and corn closed up 3 1/2 cents to 5 cents a bushel.

In New York, silver gained 8 cents an ounce but copper closed about half a cent lower.

Revision Shows U.S. Profits Were Flat in Second Quarter

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 (AP-DJ)—Corporate profits remained essentially flat in the second quarter rather than rising substantially as reported earlier, the Commerce Department said today in a major revision of the profits figure.

The department said after-tax earnings of corporations in the second quarter ran at a seasonally-adjusted annual rate of $85.6 billion, up only $500 million from the first-quarter rate.

Last month, the department said in a preliminary report that second-quarter profits had risen $5 billion from the first quarter to a rate of $81.1 billion.

The department said the upward revision in the profits figure occurred because the net inflow of income from corporate affiliates overseas was far less than estimated originally.

Figures for the second quarter's gross national product also were revised for a second time to show less growth in GNP.

The department said second-quarter GNP was revised downward by $3.5 billion to reflect a reduction in estimated property income from abroad.

It put the second-quarter GNP at an adjusted annual rate of $1,384 billion, up $25 billion from the first quarter. Last month the department estimated GNP at $1,359 billion.

The revision in the GNP resulted in a larger decline in "real" economic growth in the second quarter than was estimated a month ago.

The department said "real" GNP (excluding inflation) in the second quarter declined at an annual rate of 1.6 per cent compared to the 0.8 per cent rate of decline shown in last month's report.

The second-quarter decline still was far less than the 7 per cent rate of decline in "real" GNP in the first quarter of 1974.

In another revision, the report said the second-quarter inflation rate, as measured on the GNP basis, was 9.4 per cent rather than the 9.6 per cent rate estimated last month. The inflation rate was down from the first-quarter rate of 12.3 per cent.

In the report on corporate profits, the department said profits before taxes rose $4.8 billion at an annual rate.

The rise was far less than the $11.7 billion increase estimated a month ago, when pre-tax profits were put at a rate of $150.4 billion.

The department said that profits in the second quarter actually declined from the first period, when inventory profits are excluded. It said the rapid rise in wholesale prices produced inventory profits in the second quarter at an adjusted annual rate of $37.9 billion, up from $31 billion in the first period.

Excluding those inventory profits, earnings of corporations declined $2.1 billion in the second quarter to an annual rate of $105.6 billion, the department said.

The El Primero chronograph from Zenith can measure many things. Even the performance of other chronographs.

The El Primero was the first and is still the fastest self-winding high-frequency chronograph. With its 36,000 beats an hour it remains the only chronograph to divide time into tenths of seconds.

Its broad, integral setting heads are effectively protected and positioned for easy handling. But the El Primero offers even more. Second, minute and hour recorders, a tachymeter, quick-date setting and a water-resistant case, make it a first-class wrist watch. And this chronograph's styling is as unconventional as its performance.

When you compare it with other chronographs, you will agree that the El Primero is truly incomparable.

Illustrated model Ref. 01200419. Stainless steel. Integral setting heads. Quick date setting. Self-winding. Hardened mineral glass. Water-resistant. Other models available in gold, steel and stainless steel.

A big Swiss bank reports

In the second quarter of 1974 Credit Suisse's operations were stimulated by lively credit demand from Swiss and foreign customers. Turnover was also substantial in foreign exchange and precious metals, while new issues and stock exchange business contracted somewhat in keeping with general market trends. Aggregate assets and liabilities increased slightly over the level at the end of March 1974 to 31942 million Swiss francs.

Lively credit demand

On the loans side the continuing rapid pace of economic activity in Switzerland, active foreign trade and rising prices caused the utilization of credit lines to increase substantially. The extension of credit in other forms by the bank, chiefly to Swiss borrowers, also expanded markedly. All in all, outstanding loans topped the 12000 million Swiss franc mark for the first time.

Slacker Eurobusiness

Among deposits, time accounts fell by 10% to 7663 million Swiss francs partly as a result of customers' more cautious attitude towards the Euromarkets, but also owing to the greater need for liquidity. On the other hand, funds due to banks rose to 9175 million. Partly as a result of these diverging trends in customers' time accounts and deposits due to banks, balances held with other banks, which to a considerable degree reflect investments made in the Euromarket, declined only slightly to 12 631 million Swiss

A satisfactory increase of 376 million (7%) was registered in sight deposits. The inflow of funds into savings and investment accounts remained rather slow so that on balance aggregate deposits increased only slightly to 28 653 million. Cash in hand at 1894 million Swiss francs is still high and secondary liquidity reserves are substantial.

Satisfactory earnings

Thanks primarily to the rise in loans and to lively turnover, the Bank's earnings have shown an improvement; they more than sufficed to cover higher expenditures. After deduction of voluntary provisions for contingencies, the net profit for the first six months remains above that for the corresponding period last year.

Representative offices in Tehran

Credit Suisse, which already has representative offices, subsidiaries and branches in all the world's major finance centres, has recently opened a representative office in Tehran. It is the first Swiss bank to do so. This new office will help promote the rapidly intensifying economic and financial ties between Switzerland and Iran. Organisationally, it is attached to Credit Suisse (Middle East) S.A.L., which is the main Credit Suisse base in the Arab area. With the help of its large subsidiaries specialising in Eurobusiness - e.g. the London Multinational Bank, the Credit Suisse White Weld Group and the Merkur Bank in Luxembourg - Credit Suisse hopes to provide international assistance to meet this area's new financial requirements.

Win to Trail by Half a Game

Orioles Make Things Tight for Yankees

YORK, Sept. 19 (NYT). The Yankees, who have won 17 of their last 22 starts, stepped up the Yankees' plight with an impressive display in all departments: Mike Oller, their 37-year-old Cuban left-hander, pitched his 20th victory of the season; Tommy Davis, the 35-year-old designated hitter, twice delivered hit-and-run singles; the Orioles worked five Yankees pitchers for seven walks, two of them with the bases loaded, and they ended Pat Dobson's six-game winning streak.

They also landed the Yankees their first two-game split in more than a month. And afterward, the Orioles gave the full treatment by staging their old-fashioned "kangaroo court" in the noisy locker room—a touch of humor that Frank Robinson said was the best thing he had seen in a long time.

The teams were tied, 2-2, when the Orioles made things tight for the Yankees. With Dick Tidrow pitching for New York, the rout was on. Paul Blair topped a pitch wide of the mound toward the left side for a single that loaded the bases—and they stayed loaded after Tidrow walked Brooks Robinson on the 2-2 count, forcing in another run.

Tidrow steadied long enough to get two outs with nobody else scoring. But then came the haymakers: a walk to Bumbry, forcing in another run, and consecutive doubles off Mike Wallace by Rich Coggins (to right field) and Grich (to left).

At Boston, Fred Lynn, who spent the season with Boston's Pawtucket farm club, clubbed four hits including a two-run fourth-inning double, to power the Red Sox to a 3-5 victory over Detroit.

At San Francisco, Mike Aaron said goodbye to San Francisco with his 73rd career homer and a run-scoring single in leading Atlanta to a 4-2 victory over the Giants. It was Aaron's 18th homer of the season, which will end his 21-year career, and the RBI single gave him a total of 64 runs batted in this year.

Aaron's solo homer came in the second off Giants' rookie John Montefusco and he was given a standing ovation by the crowd of 1,503.

At Philadelphia, Rick Reuschel, Steve Stone and Ken Trilling combined to hurl the Chicago Cubs to a 5-2 victory over the Phillies. Rookie Ron Dunn drove in two runs and scored one for Chicago.

At Montreal, Tim Lincecum in two runs and scored one for Montreal.

At St. Louis, the Cardinals won 3-2 over the Braves.

At Kansas City, Reggie Jackson lined a two-run single and scored on a wild pitch in a four-run fifth inning that lifted Oakland to a 5-4 victory over the Royals. Ken Holtzman, 19-14, gained his seventh victory in his last eight starts but needed relief help from Rollie Fingers.

At Pittsburgh, Al Oliver slammed two doubles and drove in two runs as the Pirates defeated St. Louis, 4-1, behind the six-hit pitching of Jim Rooker and moved to within 1 1/2 games of the first-place Cardinals in the National League East.

It was Rooker's 18th triumph against 11 losses and snapped a six-game Cardinal winning streak and a six-game Pirate losing streak. Cardinal shortstop Mike Tyson committed two errors in the fourth, paving the way for two Pittsburgh runs.

The Pirates added two more in the seventh on Rooker's single, a sacrifice, a walk and Oliver's two-run double off the leftfield wall.

Padres 6, Reds 5

At San Diego, Enos Hernandez drove in four runs, two with a double in the seventh inning, to spark the Padres to a 6-5 victory over Cincinnati to prevent the Reds from catching up to Los Angeles. The Dodgers lost to Houston but still lead Cincinnati in the National League West by 2 1/2 games.

Randy Jones, who had dropped his last eight decisions, gained his eighth victory against 21 losses. Clay Carroll, who replaced starter Don Gullett in the seventh, took the loss to put his record at 11-5. A crowd of 33,337 saw the game which raised the Padres' home attendance to 1,004,873. It was the first time in six years that the Padres reached the million mark.

Angels 3, Rangers 1

At Arlington, Texas, Steve Hargan threw a three-hitter in the nightcap and rookie Tom Robison picked up his first two major league RBI to give the Rangers a 3-0 victory over the Angels and a split of their doubleheader. In the opener, Bruce Bochte and Joe Lahoud hit back-to-back homers in the first inning off Ferguson Jenkins to start the Angels to a 4-1 triumph.

Hargan retired the first 11 men in the second game, gave up successive singles to Bochte and Charlie Sands and then retired 11 more in a row.

Jenkins, 23-13, had not given up a home run in 75 innings until Bochte homered over the rightfield fence with two out in the opening inning; Lahoud followed by hitting the first pitch deep into the rightfield seats.

White Sox 3, Twins 1

At Chicago, Jim Kaat continued his pitching mastery over Minnesota as he hurled the White Sox to a 3-1 triumph. Kaat is now 4-0 against his former teammates.

Braves 3, Brewers 3

At Milwaukee, Frank Robinson's two-run homer capped a four-run rally in the sixth inning, and sparked Cleveland to a 5-3 victory over the Brewers.

As 5, Royals 4

At Kansas City, Reggie Jackson lined a two-run single and scored on a wild pitch in a four-run fifth inning that lifted Oakland to a 5-4 victory over the Royals. Ken Holtzman, 19-14, gained his seventh victory in his last eight starts but needed relief help from Rollie Fingers.

At Pittsburgh, Al Oliver slammed two doubles and drove in

CAUGHT IN MIDAIR—Jacksonville's Jerry Davis stops Portland's Jim Krieg, who caught first-quarter pass. Portland won the WFL game on last-second field goal.

Tie With Russia Aids WHA Status

By Robert Facht

QUEBEC CITY, Sept. 19 (WP).—One game does not make a league. But the World Hockey Association gained a ton of recognition and even a few ounces of respect from Team Canada's 3-3 tie with Russia here Tuesday night.

There is no instant parity with the National Hockey League, of course, despite some claims to the contrary. WHA teams simply don't have the depth of the NHL clubs. What they do have, however, are some of hockey's brightest stars.

The sight of Bobby Hull, Gordie Howe and Frank Mahovlich on the same power play gave NHL fans an idea of what they're missing these days. Bobby Orr, Bobby Clarke, Phil Esposito and Yvan Cournoyer are great hockey players, but they don't stir the emotion of hockey fans quite so much, either.

The crowd of 10,953 at Le Colisee went wild when Hull and Howe were introduced. When Hull scored his second goal, it again set them off.

Brad Selwood and Rickey Lee, both 25 and refugees from the Toronto Maple Leafs, and Rick Smith and Paul Sherry, a pair of former NHL journeymen, made up two-thirds of Team Canada's defense. They played extremely well.

Also demonstrated here, in case the Flyers' Stanley Cup victory was not convincing enough, was the importance of skating, forechecking, breaking up the opposition's patterns.

Who's the Ape?

By Russell Baker

NEW YORK—It was midnight by the television set and John Carradine was turning a woman into an ape. Or was he turning an ape into a woman? I can't remember, but it makes no difference since John Carradine probably did it both ways during his long career at mad science. I seem to recall him at one stage turning Lon Chaney into Count Dracula, which is really big-time mad science, in a class with George Zucco's achievement in turning Maria Montez into an Egyptian mummy, or vice versa.

Baker

In any case, Carradine was wearing surgical gown and cap and he was turning in what looked to be a well-built stone cellar fitted with expensive operating room equipment. A good stone cellar is the surest warning that you are in the presence of a mad scientist. True, they always put on surgical gowns, too, but by that time it is usually too late. The time to run for the woods is when you see that beautiful masquary.

As Carradine fiddled with scalpels and showed too much white eyeball, I realized that I knew everything that was going to happen in this movie. So did anybody else who was watching it anywhere else in town. So had everybody who had paid good money to see it at a movie house years ago.

It was like Chinese opera. We all loved it for its utter predictability. Someone was going to ask Carradine why he was conducting this fiendish experiment, and Carradine would say that he was doing it for the pure hell of it, and then somebody would tell Carradine he was mad, and Carradine would strap this party to the operating table and show too much white eyeball, and so on.

It is hard to believe movies of this genre ever really scared audiences, or that they were even intended to. The appeal is not to our love of horror, but to some bioglyph about scientists that probably lurks in most of us.

Watching Carradine at work, I realized that he would have seemed a thoroughly admirable character if the film-makers had not loaded the dice against him. The rolling eyeballs, the stone cellar. These irrelevancies were what made him Mr. Bad Guy. If the action had been switched to a busy hospital and Carradine had smiled instead of grimacing, he would have seemed a perfectly admirable, even heroic, figure.

What, after all, is so mad about turning an ape into a woman? A British scientist says he recently started a human being growing in a test tube, and Carradine's project was surely more sensible than this. In a time of dwindling planetary resources, Carradine's projects—turning apes into people—wisely compensates the human population increase by causing an equal reduction in the ape population.

Making new people out of whole cloth, as it were, as the British experimenter claims to have done, accelerates population growth when the real need is to stop it. Carradine's science is far sadder because it opens doors on a possible solution to population problems: namely, the possibility of disposing humanely of excess people by transferring them into the ape kingdom.

I did not sit up to see Carradine reach the dreadful end that would deny us the fruits of his genius. I knew his work would be destroyed and that he would be killed by his ape-woman when she inevitably went berserk. This violent end would be representative victory for justice, the fitting reward for all mad scientists who toy with the unknown for the pure hell of it.

But in a modern hospital and given the dimples of Dr. Kildare, the audience is compelled to admire him for his struggle to make apes and women interchangeable, for in the hospital grouping he is a servant of society.

Well, obviously a lot of us fear and dislike science, but don't dare admit it. The movies know it, however. They give us the mad scientist whom we can fear and despise without feeling bigoted and anti-intellectual even though, to tell the truth, his work is often sadder than that of sane scientists.

Astrologer for High Finance, Corporations

By Helena Matheopoulos

LONDON (H.T.)—Millions in Britain read Kathina Theodosiou's daily astrological forecasts in the Daily Express and the Evening Standard. But what has brought her acclaim and an international clientele is her work in business astrology.

Her reputation is such that bankers, stockbrokers, shipping magnates and company directors from all over the world consult her before making decisions. Large companies seek her advice about the timing of investments, take-overs or the hiring of personnel.

"I like the business world. Its problems are real and important, often affecting scores of people, and it's tremendously satisfying to help pull something off. The most absorbing work is children's horoscopes. The world of show business, on the other hand, bores me stiff. Most of its members seem in greater need of flattery and ego-boosting than astrological advice. Company work can be tedious, too."

Miss Theodosiou is small, 58 and articulate. She had "a rather odd childhood," she says, with a Greek father and Irish-English mother, both hot-tempered and always fighting "ferociously and happily," in their family-owned hotel in London.

Adored Men

At the age of 4 a double cataract developed into total blindness, but a series of operations restored her sight three years later. She did so well at school when she eventually got there that everyone predicted a university education for her.

But her father would have none of it. "He thought that too much education was bad for women and only made it more difficult to marry them off. Although I adored men and was pretty hot blooded, this made me determined never to let myself get under any man's thumb." True to her word, she never married.

When the family lost almost everything during the Depression, even her father couldn't stop her from looking for a job. Writing was her interest and journalism her goal. After two six-month stints at secretarial work, she had a chance for a change.

"The employment agency called to say that a Mr. R.E. Naylor from the Sunday Express needed an assistant. I leaped at the chance. Little knowing that he was the famous astrologer who, six years before, had pioneered newspaper astrology by writing a horoscope

"I like the business world. Its problems are real and important, often affecting scores of people. It's tremendously satisfying to help pull something off."

For Princess Margaret shortly after her birth. Indeed I'd hardly ever heard of astrology, either.

"I went to this Dickensian-looking house near the British Museum, shook hands with this nice gentleman in his 50s and sat down. To my utter astonishment, instead of asking for my qualifications and typing speed, he wanted to know the time, date and place of my birth. I stared, thinking he must be a bomb, and mumbled that I knew the date and place, but had no clue as to the time. Would I then kindly ring my mother on the spot and find out? I did and she remembered. He scribbled for a while, then looked up and smiled. All was well. I was a Scorpio with Leo ascending and the moon in Gemini. As that wasn't enough, the planet Uranus, (always prominent in astrologers' charts), was all over my horoscope. I was destined to be married to astrology and inherit his mantle, he said." The job was hers.

Pocket Money

At first work consisted of taking dictation for his astrological columns, at a salary equal to about $6 a week (pocket money since she still lived at home), but soon she became fascinated by astrology and, under Mr. Naylor's guidance, studied enough to be able to "ghost" clients' horoscopes with flair for the next five years.

Then, in 1941, her father died and money became crucial. On Mr. Naylor's advice, she left to set up her own business. In 1947, she discovered business astrology when a friend's husband asked for a business horoscope.

"I said I would attempt one as an experiment, without payment. It worked. I got more and more curious, and studied stock exchange reports and the Financial Times regularly in connection with planetary movements, trying to find out how they affect the market and what rules what. Soon I began to discern a certain pattern." Today 95 per cent of Miss Theodosiou's clients are businessmen, who sometimes summon her long distances for consultation.

Then, in 1950, she began to write a newspaper column, for the Evening Standard. Newspaper astrology, she considers to be "a valid but limited field, especially in the dailies. All you can do is, first, show the collective influences of the slow-moving planets, second, pick the mood of the day through the position of the moon which moves rapidly from day to day, and third, point to the way in which solar, lunar and planetary aspects (i.e. certain distances between them) will affect each sign of the zodiac; always sensibly and with caution, because each person's horoscope will modify the way and extent to which all this will influence him."

The Computer

Five years later, after hearing about computerized charts, she had an idea of computerizing astrology. No one was interested at the time, until, in 1967, an American client of hers (a partner in a public relations firm whom she had advised) thought the time was ripe, got financial backing and asked Miss Theodosiou to be a partner in a computerized horoscope venture called "Time Pattern Reports," the biggest competitor of Astroflash, the machine found, among other places, at Grand Central Station in New York.

"The work involved was colossal: 18 months' nonstop sessions with a mathematician and a computer programmer, before we could devise a formula for computerizing astrological data and combination interpretations, then another year to compile all the mass of material, synthesize and write it into something that reads smoothly, untroubled by astrological jargon, incomprehensible to the average person. Now that astrology is so much more widespread, I might have included some terms."

The company has now recouped its investment of $500,000 and is making a profit. Gain apart, her other aim was to get vast numbers of people interested in astrology.

"Somehow, it works, and although we know how, we don't really know why. It's not us saying it's absolutely scientific, it's not, you know. Metaphysically scientific, yes, but in terms of purely natural science, no. It's an extraordinary combination of mathematical, astronomical observation, plus a certain flair for intuitive interpretation."

PEOPLE: Doris Day Wins $22-Million Suit

Actress Doris Day was awarded more than $22 million for fraud and malpractice damages from her former lawyer and business manager in a Los Angeles court Wednesday. Superior Court Judge Lester Olson denounced the conduct of Jerome Rosenthal as "gross and outrageous."

The hour-long oral decision by Olson, who handled the 90-day trial with a jury, ended 13 consolidated lawsuits involving Rosenthal's handling of the finances of Miss Day and her late husband and manager Martin Melcher over a period of 20 years.

Miss Day said that she was "grateful" that it was all over and wished Melcher could be with her to share the triumph. She praised her attorney, Robert Winslow, and said that she is now better informed about her financial affairs than when she and her husband entrusted their fortune to Rosenthal.

"I was so busy working at the time I really didn't know what was going on," she said. "I couldn't be at the office and the studio." Bursting into tears, Miss Day, 53, said, "I am healthy and I am rich."

Martha Mitchell began talking the moment she stepped off a plane in London Thursday and talked all the way through customs. She began a press conference with "I'm going to ask the questions." The estranged wife of former U.S. Attorney General John Mitchell is in London for a television appearance.

The star of the U.S. television series "King Fu," David Carradine has been charged with wrecking furniture and breaking windows in a neighbor's home, authorities say. Police said that Carradine, 37-year-old son of actor John Carradine, was arrested Monday and released on $1,000 bond. He is to be arraigned Friday in Los Angeles. Carradine reportedly cut his arm, and the neighbor followed a trail of blood back to Carradine's house.

THE FORTUNES OF EVEL KNEVEL, his attempt at jumping the Snake River Canyon in a sky-cycle will bring him only something less than $3 million, half the amount he had said he would win. But he's not complaining. "What the hell, I'm still alive," he said in Butte, Mont., his home town, "I have the blue mountains I need all that money."

President Richard Nixon's doctor's request for a routine in early 1974, "I've got to be said at a Washington party."

An Australian-born claimant in sworn Melbourne court was the daughter of Duke of Windsor. She pleaded guilty to obtaining $170,000 from August by pretending to receive 20,000 Aust from the Melbourne Truth for an alleged parentage, pretenses charge.

After Mrs. Stoll has had given an interview paper and intended action to enforce it, ever, she was found taining 163 Aust worth of clothing check and fined.
